DETAILED ACTION

Response to Arguments

1. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1 and 11 on page 8 of the Remarks "Roztocil at least does not teach establishing a closed-loop communication link "between the designer location and the print service provider location", creating a press ready file "encompassing both said print job and said job ticket", or "transmitting over said closed- loop communication link continuously updated status information from the print service provider location to the designer location so as to keep the designer location apprised of a production status of the processing being performed at the print service provider location, said status information including an indication of tasks that have already been performed in relation to the print job and a current task being performed in relation to the print job". For example, Roztocil's discussion of tracking status information does not indicate that a "designer location" separate from a print service provider location is provided with tracking information via a closed-loop communication link" have been considered, in response:

"Roztocil '868 discloses creating a press ready file at the designer location that encompasses both said print job and said job ticket (paragraph [0027], lines 18-24, where the document is converted into a print ready file format, thus including the job);

establishing a closed-loop communication link (paragraph [0022], lines 12-13, where the closed-loop communication is the network) between the designer location and the print service provider location (paragraph [0022], lines 1-13, where the communication is being established between the print shop client and the print shop);

transmitting over said closed-loop communication link continuously updated status information to the designer location so as to keep the designer location apprised of a production status of said print job at the print service provider location, said status information including an indication of tasks that have already been performed in relation to the print job and a current task being performed in relation to the print job (paragraph [0047], where there are tools provided for the client to be aware of the status of the print job at every moment during the process)."

- 2. Rejection under 35 U.S.C. 101 has been withdrawn.
- 3. Objections to the claims have been withdrawn.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

- 4. The text of those sections of Title 35, U.S. Code not included in this action can be found in a prior Office action.
- 5. Claims 1, 4, 7-8, 11, 14 and 17-18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Roztocil et al. (US 2001/0044868).
 - (1) regarding claims 1 and 11:

Roztocil '868 discloses a method of managing workflow in a commercial printing environment including a designer location (Fig. 1, print shop client) and a print service provider location (Fig. 1, print shop), said method comprising:

creating at the designer location a print job to be printed at the print service provider location (paragraph [0022], lines 1-8, where the user creates a print job at his/her workstation);

establishing a closed-loop communication link (paragraph [0022], lines 12-13, where the closed-loop communication is the network) between the designer location and the print service provider location (paragraph [0022], lines 1-13, where the communication is being established between the print shop client and the print shop);

the designer location obtaining updated device configuration information (paragraph [0023], lines 8-17, where the designer receives pre-printed tickets containing templates and standardize operations) from the print service provider location via said closed-loop communication link (paragraph [0022], lines 8-13, where a job made by the customer is being interpreted as the print ready file using device configuration information (the device configuration information at some point in time has to be updated into the system));

creating a job ticket at the designer location that specifies production devices of the print service provider to be used to process said print job (paragraph [0023], where the ticket can include for example a three hole puncher in the final output) and processing instructions for the print service provider location (paragraph [0023], lines 3-5);

creating a press ready file at the designer location that encompasses both said print job and said job ticket (paragraph [0027], lines 18-24, where the document is converted into a print ready file format, thus including the job); submitting said press ready file to the print service provider location via said closed-loop communication link (paragraph [0022], lines 8-13);

processing said print job at the print service provider location (paragraph [0029], where the store front performs all the processes necessary for performing the print job); and transmitting over said closed-loop communication link continuously updated status information to the designer location so as to keep the designer location apprised of a production status of said print job at the print service provider location, said status information including an indication of tasks that have already been performed in relation to the print job and a current task being performed in relation to the print job (paragraph [0047], where there are tools provided for the client to be aware of the status of the print job at every moment during the process).

With regard to claim 11 all the limitations are the same and because of that the same basis for the rejection of claim 1 is being used, except for performing the steps in by a computer-readable medium storing a program product disclosed on paragraph [0036, lines 1-4.

(3) regarding claims 4 and 14:

Roztocil '868 further discloses said production status being updated at a plurality of stages of the workflow (paragraph [0047], lines 10-16, where there are tools for monitoring multiple production output devices and provide visual feedback of these devices status and since it provides current information to the user it implies that it's been update).

10/635,474 Art Unit: 2625

(4) regarding claims 7 and 17:

Roztocil '868 further discloses further comprising automatically updating said job ticket of said press ready file upon completion of each task in the workflow via said closed-loop communication link (paragraph [0044], lines 19-29, where the job ticket is been updated at the same time information in the compound documents is been updated, this via the communication network (paragraph [0022], lines 12-13)).

(5) regarding claims 8 and 18:

Roztocil '868 further comprising performing automated job closing based upon information in said updated job ticket upon completion of production of said print job (paragraph [0041], where having libraries to facilitate updates and reprints is the definition used in the applicant's disclosure to refer to "closing", thus paragraph 41 has been used).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

- 6. The text of those sections of Title 35, U.S. Code not included in this action can be found in a prior Office action.
- 7. Claims 9 and 19 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Roztocil et al. (US 2001/0044868) in view of Kemp et al. (US 2002/0078160).

Roztocil '868 discloses all the subject matter as described above except further comprising allowing a user at the designer location to, via the closed-loop communication link, select the print service provider location from among a plurality of print service provider locations and corresponding information on production capabilities.

Application/Control Number:

However, Kemp '160 teaches further comprising allowing a user at the designer location to, via the closed-loop communication link, select the print service provider location from among a plurality of print service provider locations and corresponding information on production capabilities (paragraph [0021], [0022] and [0023]).

Therefore it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to allow a user at the designer location to, via the closed-loop communication link, select the print service provider location from among a plurality of print service provider locations and corresponding information on production capabilities as taught by Kemp '160, in the system of Roztocil '868. In doing this, the user has a wide variety of selections to choose from, thus making the system user-friendlier.

Conclusion

8. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the
